Headline:
Dry with sunny spells on Friday.

Today:
Dry and bright with good sunny spells for most, but increasingly cloudy and breezy towards the west coast with some patchy rain across the Hebrides from late afternoon.

Tonight:
Some late evening sunshine across the east and south, but cloudy conditions spread east overnight. Dry for most, but some patchy light rain in the northwest. Milder then previous nights.

Saturday:
A dry day. Rather cloudy, but some good spells of sunshine, particularly in the west. Breezy in the northwest.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
A cloudier few days. More persistent rain in the west on Sunday. This gradually spreads east on Monday then clears on Tuesday to drier brighter conditions.
